Essay.

Nowadays people are concerned about their job and career choice, that is why they can change it during their lives. Is changing a career a positive tendency or not?

So it is the same for the residence

In my opinion, it is a positive development. Firstly, psychological researches show that changing a job every 4-6 years is good for people's mental health. It helps you to refresh your life, to get a new experience, to find and to build the career that will be pleasant for you. Secondly, we live in the 21st century, where you should always get a new knowledge, in case to be a successful specialist. Changing the career is a good chance to get new professional skills and become high-qualified specialist.

However, some people claim that it is negative practice. They say if you work at one job during whole life you will have more chances to realise yourself and you will probably get a higher position later.

I personally disagree with that, because you won't become successful just because you work in one place your whole life. You should enjoy your job, otherwise you always will always be unmotivated worker, which won't will not achieve a lot.

In conclusion, changing your career is a positive development, which helps you to find a job for your heart. So, if you don't like your career, maybe it is time to change it?
