Nowadays the problem of increasing number of people has an effect of changing their careers several times. Let's consider the pros and cons of the development. 26

On one hand, changing careers cause individual development. You learn new information, increase the level of knowledge in different economical spheres to stay at the job or get a higher position. A. Gelen consider that the main aim of the society is to provide individual development of a person. In the XXI century many new professions appeared. As a result people, who had no achievements in their job, succeed in the new sphere by being¹⁰⁰ a pioneer in it.

On the other hand, changing careers several times may cause negative effect. If someone changes places too often, he will not succeed at any of them. For example the end of the XX century is famous for rising level of poor people. There're several reasons for that. One of them is that person often changes his career and place of residence. If he had no achievements at one sphere, he tried another, but ~~didn't~~ wasn't good at any job. That's why he ~~loses~~^{lost} control of his life and lost his social position.

In conclusion, changing careers and places of residence is good, but only if that happens not often, unless it causes negative ^{influence} ~~effect~~ on the society. 220
