Nowadays, an increasing amount of people frequently change their careers and places of living several times during their lives. In this essay I will answer, if this is a positive development or not. 33

I am not fully agree with that statement. On the one hand I think it is a positive ^{way of} development. By changing your kind of job or moving to another place, you get an cultural enrichment and reach a lot of experience for yourself. 78

For example, people, who change a country from where they lived and began to study another profession can be great storytellers because of rich life experience and many events in their existing 40

On the other side it isn't good for economics and for family budget too. People don't constantly work in one organization and everytime there is a need to change your current job.

Also it can be a negative development for your personality - moving to another country is always a reason of forgetting about your motherland. 165

In conclusion, I would say that positive development is more valuable than negative. Reasons I described can explain my opinion - changing type of life is a positive development. 194
