An increasing number of people today frequently change their careers and places of residence several times during their lives. 19

On one hand, it is a really positive development because all these people can get a lot of different experience, that is why their lives become far more interesting, full of ⁵⁰ happiness and sadness with a great number of cool memories. For example, which life was brighter: a life of Polette Remark, who was a famous actress and model, lived ~~(either)~~ in the USA and Europe, had four husbands, one of them was one of the best German writers Remark or a ¹⁰⁰ life of an absolutely boring person, who didn't want to find out anything about this world? 116

Nevertheless, on the other hand, such actions can mean that the persons do not know exactly what they really want to do in this life, what they want to bring to the world and the whole society. In this way, we can not call this development a positive one. Moreover, I think such persons need help because maybe they will not find their own place at all, that means they can harm themselves or have any other mental problems.

In my ²⁰⁰ opinion, all the things can not have the only meaning. So, everybody must decide in what way they change their careers and places of residence.
