I'd like to talk about having long summer holiday or longer terms. Most students say that it's better to have a long summer holiday either longer terms, and I only partly agree with that. Let's discuss the advantages and disadvantages of this sentence.

Firstly, summer holiday is the only time when you can hang out for long or travel somewhere, but it's already long enough and when students come back to school, they don't remember most of learnt material. ~~Imagine, if summer holiday would be longer. Students would forget every thing that way. Having longer terms will mean, relaxing after that stressful work at school is really good, but studying is also very important. Students forget about that and overrate the amount of work at school. That way, having longer terms will positively effect on studying, right?~~

However, it would be really difficult to study on long terms, because students would be really tired from school and wouldn't have free time left. It'd be less effective than giving students rest and then continue studying.

To sum up, I'd say that students should have summer holiday that long, but with the only change: they would have to jog their memory of school material, on holidays, so students ~~we~~ ^{would} continue studying in the next grade with fresh memory from resting and remembering everything. That's all I wanted to say.
