Should students have a long summer holidays or should terms be longer?

I like summer because of its long holidays. But some people, especially teachers, say that children shouldn't have so much free time.

But I have another opinion. I think, that 9 months of school are often very stressful for kids and teens, so they should relax at all, because stress influences on our body badly. We can have a lot of troubles with health because of it.

Children can have different activities during their holidays. They can spend time with friends, with family, play computer games, visit different places or find a job. Someone can find new hobby or new company of friends. These things help to relax and improve student's skills.

But such long holidays can badly influence on our studying. School themes can be forgotten. A lot of student don't want to learn something new, so they don't improve their mind, spending all the time in mobile or computer games.

In my opinion, on holidays we shouldn't forget about getting new skills, and should have a thirst for knowledge. So, should students have long summer holidays?

My answer - yes. We are kids and we want to spend our childhood with fun and without stress. I wish, that next summer holidays will be full of exciting moments
