Should students have a long summer holiday or should terms be longer?

As we know, there are school holidays every year. On holidays students relax from school work, do their extra-curricular activities and prepare for exams. Then I decide to get to know whether having a longer summer holiday is more acceptable than having longer terms.

So, bearing in mind teachers absent owing to their health, the mistreatments between students and teachers and some school problems connected with society, I can suppose that it will be better to learn school programme on school holidays. You are studying on your own, understands the materials clearer and prepares for your exams more productively. This will strongly affect ~~to~~ your preparation for the exams.

Of course, you have to have free time and do leisure activities - your hobbies. Doing leisure activities develops your brain, your logical skills and the ability of solving the problems on your own. I recommend each of you? to do some leisure tasks and activities on holidays.

I also want to point out that there is a kind of teachers, whose purpose is only to get money from their job. They don't explain the materials as they need to, don't help other students to understand the theme and don't prepare children for exams. Your knowledges can become lower and you might fail an exam. And that's the advantage of studying on holidays.

To sum up, I prefer to study by yourself and on holiday. I'm against becoming terms longer. It's not effective because the school doesn't give you all the education. you need to pass an exam and get a good job.
